Former ASI manager joins advisory board of Carnegie

By Anna Devine 25 May 2021

Carnegie Fund Services, a Swiss platform, has appointed John Campbell as chairman of its advisory board.

Mr Campbell was previously global head of strategic clients at Aberdeen Standard Investments. Before this he worked at State Street Global Services business.

In the newly created role, Mr Campbell will report to Neil Carnegie, chairman of CFS. He will support the business as it seeks to expand its fintech platform, fundeye.com, which provides investors with fund documentation and data.

Mr Carnegie says: “I am delighted to welcome [Mr Campbell], as we embark on an exciting new chapter in our development of fundeye.com.”

Mr Campbell will also be responsible for building out the advisory board and guide future strategy.

He says: “I am excited to be joining CFS at such a pivotal moment in the development of its fintech investor platform, with a proposition that will bring significant and positive benefits to the worldwide business of fund distribution.”
